A search for three men who escaped with a pay roll of $4,700 belonging to the Foundation Company, 120 Liberty Street, after a mad dash in a maroon-colored touring car through the heart of the Long Island City business section, was continued last night through-out Queens and Brooklyn. Witnesses who reported seeing the car heading toward Brooklyn said that it was making fifty miles an hour through the industrial section and thence past Queens borough hall, where it narrowly missed striking automobiles and pedestrians.

The money was taken from Fred Shutz, of 203 West Seventy-eighth Street, Manhattan, when he was within a few hundred feet of where his company has 100 employees at work on a building for the Whitaker-Glessner Company, at Van Dam and Nelson Streets, Long Island City. Leaving the Queensborough subway station at Benson Street with the pay roll envelopes in a cardboard box under his arm, Shutz started across lots to reach the men at work. When abreast the fence of the Long Island Box Company he was accosted by a tall man who stuck a revolver again his ribs and demanded: "Give me that box, and hurry up."

Menaced With Death
Shutz started to parley and received a blow from a second man, who came behind and jerked the box from him. The other seized him, shoved him against the fence and said: "Keep your face to that fence or you're a dead man."

Turning a minute later, Shutz was joined by Joseph Shephard of Long Island City, who had seen the head-up, and together they saw the two men get into a waiting automobile which a third man drove away. Shephard, who at first believed the affair a flight and turned his approach to a retreat when he saw the men take the box, was ordered by the men to halt or be shot. He complied until they had boarded the automobile, which it was observed had its license plate detached.

Police Comb Vicinity

The men reported the robbery immediately. Two independent alarms were sent out by the police. One was to intercept the automobile for speeding and driving without a license. A few minutes later another was sent when the robbery report was received at the station house. Ten minutes later motorcycle policemen were combing Queens and Brooklyn for the car. It developed that a traffic policeman was on duty at Queens Boulevard and Van Dam Street almost within easy view of the hold-up, and that the department automobile passed within 200 feet of the crime carrying an injured man to the hospital. The police were inclined to blame Shutz for failing to make an outcry after the robbery.

Vessel's Owner Nearly Faints
When He Learns Royalty
Saved Fishing Crew

ROME, Oct. 21 (By The Associated Press).—King Victor Emmanuel is pictured in advice from San Rocco today in the role of rescuer of an endangered fishermen's party.

While the King was out on a fishing expedition with the royal princesses at the mouth of the Arno, in Tuscany, he saw a short distance away a sailboat being carried into danger by a strong current. The royal party hurried to the rescue. The King and the princesses got out and standing in water up to their hips threw a rope to the fishermen and then joined in tugging them in by pulling sailor fashion.

Tullio Romeo, the owner of the fishing boat, insisted on presenting them a basket of fish. He nearly fainted when the princesses and the King told him who they were.
